A Duty and a pleasure

Hundreds of young men and women rightly feel it their duty to prepare now for any future National Emergency.

Brooklands, as one of Britain's leading Civil Flying Schools, has already trained hundreds of valuable pilots—and is ready to handle hundreds more at once. At Brooklands you can join when you like, fly when you like, spend your spare time in the most congenial company and generally suit your own convenience. Only high-efficiency training machines and "B" Licence pilots, of the kind that have made Brooklands instruction famous, are employed.

Flying at Brooklands is a pleasure, as well as a duty. Young men and women willing to take part in this movement of National Importance should write to me without delay.
