JAR FCL PILOT TRAINING

Four Forces Aviation has recently opened a new pilot training ground school near Heathrow where it is expected that it will be one of the very first facilities to gain approval as a FTO under JAR-FCL, providing modular ATPL and "Bridge Training" to airlines, other training organisations and individual ATPL candidates. FNPT II simulators will be installed to conduct MCC and IR training.

We are now looking to fill positions for this prestigious and dynamic facility.

INSTRUMENT RATING SIMULATOR INSTRUCTOR

The Instrument Rating Simulator Instructor should have the necessary experience to meet the requirement for Synthetic Flight Training Instructors as stipulated in JAR-FCL. The IR module which will be offered to the students consists of a total of 55 hours and we are applying for a maximum of 40 hours approval to take place in our Mechatronix FNPT II. This demands a creative instructor who can easily adapt to new ideas and can easily fit into a dynamic and flexible organisation.

This position is considered an important part of the team and will provide a stimulating and dynamic environment for candidates with motivation and ambition.

Salaries and benefits will reflect the importance of this position.

Please submit your CV in strictest confidence for the attention of Mr Frode Iversen, Managing Director.
