To keep your aircraft airworthy, you need
- to be able to rectify faults quickly
- service that is readily available, 24 hours a day
- personnel trained to handle your aircraft's systems
- total management control systems that keep you in the picture at all times
- all of this wherever you need it and for just as long, at a cost you can afford.

The Bedek Aviation Division of IAI can supply what you need. We've been supplying it to a growing number of airlines for 30 years.

- Line service personnel at the airfields you fly to
- The capability to service and repair virtually any aircraft from a business aircraft to a wide-body airliner
- Airframe modification knowhow to convert passenger planes to cargo planes or combis
- An engine plant with computerized test cells, in-house developed repair schemes and inspection criteria to increase fuel efficiency and save you money
- An accessories repair and overhaul facility which can treat more than 10,000 types of hydraulic, engine and avionic systems, helicopter blades, and dynamic components
- Approved by major air regulatory agencies: the FAA (125-f), the CAA of the UK, the West German LBA and the Swiss FAO

For total aircraft support and support training, IAI's Bedek Aviation Division. For helicopters, IAI's Mata Plant. IAI provides a single source for aerospace technology.
