

STRANGELY, WHEN WE DO A GREAT JOB, OUR CLIENTS TAKE OFF.

It's a phenomenon we seem to encounter at Singapore Aerospace. Day in and day out. But it's something we take in our stride. Do you suppose it could be a result of our well-established aircraft engineering facility, which is one of the best in the region? Could it perhaps be our unique range of products and services including maintenance of wide and narrow-body commercial aircraft and military jets, structural modification, engines and aircraft components overhaul, parts manufacture, and materials support which we offer? Could it be the emphasis we place on quality, reliable workmanship and competitive pricing? Could it be our fast turnaround time in the aerospace industry?

Could it be our network of offices strategically located in the United States, Europe, Middle East and the Asia-Pacific region which brings us closer to our customers? Could it be that our facilities are regularly audited and approved by Civil Airworthiness Authorities in the Asia-Pacific region, the US

Federal Aviation Administration and major aircraft manufacturers? Or could it be the fact that the greatest reward we expect from our customers is to wave their aircraft bon voyage as they take off into the skies?
