

EXPLANATORY NOTES

The data in this census covers all commercial jet- and turboprop-powered transport aircraft in service or on firm order with the world's airlines, excluding aircraft that carry fewer than 14 passengers, or the equivalent in cargo.

The tables are in two sections, both of which have been compiled by Flight ACAS research officer John Wilding using Flight's ACAS database.

Section one records the fleets of the Western-built airliners, and the second section records the fleets of Russian/CIS-built types.

The information is correct to July 2008 and excludes non-airline operators, such as leasing companies and the military. Aircraft are listed in alphabetical order, first by manufacturer and then type.

Operators are listed by region, with any aircraft variant in brackets next to the operator's name.

Fleet data comprises the in-service fleet and, where applicable, the outstanding firm orders in parentheses in the right-hand column.

On the ACAS database, an airliner is defined an airliner as being "in service" if it is either "active" (in other words accumulating flying hours) or "parked". An aircraft is classified as "parked" if it is known to be inactive – for example, is grounded due to airworthiness requirements, put into storage, and so on, and when flying hours for three consecutive months are reported as zero.

The exception is where the aircraft is undergoing maintenance, where it will remain classified as active. Aircraft awaiting a conversion will be shown as parked.

The region is dictated by operator base and does not necessarily indicate the area of operation. Options and letters of intent (where a firm contract has not been signed) are not included. Orders by, and aircraft with, leasing companies and holding companies such as China Aviation Supplies (CASGC) are excluded, unless a confirmed end-user is known – in which case the aircraft is shown against the airline concerned.

Operators' fleets include leased aircraft. Aircraft being operated on wet-lease are generally listed with the company flying the aircraft, rather than the airline for which they are being operated.

The Russian/CIS fleet data is based on information from the Russian commercial aircraft register, which can sometimes show aircraft owned by the state to be returned to the state when they are not being operated – for example, while undergoing maintenance.

Because the data does not differentiate between aircraft returned temporarily or permanently, some airliners that have been temporarily removed from an airline's fleet and returned to the state may not be shown as being with the airline for which they operate.

Russian aircraft tend to spend a long time parked before being permanently retired – much longer than equivalent Western aircraft – so it can be difficult to establish the exact status of the "available fleet" (parked aircraft that could be returned to operation).

For more information on airliner types see our two-part World Airliners Directory (Flight International, 23-29 October 2007 and 30 October-5 November 2007).
