ANALYSIS

Recently updated information shows that just over 1,350 devices designed to simulate commercial airliners are currently in use around the world. This total comes to about 80 more simulators than were accounted for at the same point last year.

Full-flight simulators alone represent about 85% of that number, while the balance is for fixed-based flight training devices.

More than half of all commercial simulators currently in service were provided by CAE. The Canadian manufacturer also operates training facilities around the globe, with a share of 14% of the world's training operations.

North America is where just over one-third of all airliner devices are currently based, while Boeing types are the most simulated, with a share of 45% of all equipment.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

CAE announced at the 2018 Farnborough air show that it had sold to Qatar Airways five full-flight simulators, all designed for Boeing types. The deal included three 777X devices and two more to simulate the 737 Max. Two flight training devices, one for each of the two FSS aircraft types, were also part of the agreement.

In August of last year, Vietnam Airlines opened a new training centre in Ho Chi Minh City, featuring two Airbus A320 devices, plus simulators for the A350 and the Boeing 787, with one of each. All four simulators were built by CAE and part of an order originally disclosed at the 2016 Farnborough air show.

Still in August, FlightSafety International and Haite Aviation Safety and Training signed an agreement for the purchase of a full-flight simulator for the Airbus A320. The device will replicate both the Ceo and Neo versions of the A320 aircraft. The FlightSafety FS1000 simulator is due to be qualified to Level D and enter service at Haite's training centre in Singapore in 2019.

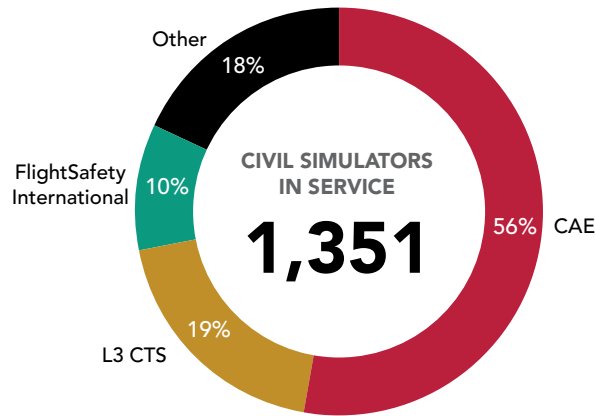

CAE announced in September the expansion of its pilot training capacity in Japan with the inauguration of its first Airbus A320 full-flight simulator deployed at JAL-CAE Flight Training, the joint venture between CAE and Japan Airlines, in Tokyo. The CAE-built Airbus A320 full-flight simulator will support the pilot training needs of Japanese airlines and other airline customers across the region.

Still in third quarter of 2018, the CAE-Cebu Pacific joint venture, Philippine Academy for Aviation Training (PAAT), announced the expansion of its training capacity with the acquisition of a new Airbus A320neo full-flight simulator. The CAE7000XR Series device, equipped with the CAE Tropos 6000XR visual system, will serve the growing pilot training needs of Cebu Pacific, as well as other operators in the region. The new simulator was deployed at the CAE Clark-PAAT training centre, near Manila, in the first half of 2019.

Still in Asia, the Boeing Flight Services Training Center in Shanghai received in October Tru Simulation and Training's Level D qualification for China's first-ever 737 Max full-flight simulator. US-based Tru was formed in 2014 after Textron merged subsidiary AAI Corp with three new acquisitions: Mechtronix, Opinicus and ProFlight.

In November, Easyjet signed a long-term training agreement with CAE for the low-cost carrier's pilots. CAE will expand its training network to provide the airline with three new European pilot training locations, equipped with a fleet of its latest XR Series flight simulators. CAE will build a new centre at London Gatwick airport with a dedicated space to serve EasyJet's training needs and will deploy nine Airbus A320-family full-flight simulators and three flight training devices in the new London Gatwick centre, and two additional training locations in Manchester and Milan. The centres will be ready for training starting in the second half of 2019.

In the same month, FlightSafety International announced that the Embraer E-170 aircraft simulator it built for S7 Airlines has received European Union Aviation Safety Agency qualification. According to Cirium's Fleets Analyzer, the Russian carrier currently operates 17 examples of the type.

During 2018, Boeing Flight Services Training Center at London Gatwick airport received its second 737 Max full-flight simulator from Tru. The first device was updated and qualified to Level D by the Civil Aviation Authority in August, while the second device received Level D qualification later that year.

In the first quarter of 2019, Latvian carrier Air Baltic announced that it had ordered an Airbus A220 full-flight simulator for installation at its Riga training centre. The Level D device, from CAE's 7000XR series, is Air Baltic's first directly purchased simulator and is scheduled for delivery by year-end. The carrier plans to operate an all-A220 fleet from 2023.

In April 2019, CAE announced at the World Aviation Training Symposium the sale of two Airbus A220-300 CAE 7000XR Series full-flight simulators and two CAE 500XR flight training devices to JetBlue Airways, which is preparing the entry into service of its new aircraft. The first full-flight simulator and flight training device will be delivered in the first half of 2020 at JetBlue University, in Orlando, Florida.

Still in the second quarter of 2019, Egyptair announced the selection of FlightSafety International to design and manufacture a full flight simulator for the Airbus A220-300 aircraft. The simulator will be installed at the Egyptair Training Academy headquarters at Cairo International airport.

CAE trains aspiring pilots through its network of aviation academies in 10 global locations. Depending on the location, a range of training programs are available including, Commercial Pilot License (CPL), Airline Transport Pilot Licence (ATPL), and airline-mentored Multi-crew Pilot Licence (MPL), all of which combine premier ground school courses with high quality flying instruction.

No other organisation places more pilots with more airlines than CAE. CAE has active cadet programs with JetBlue, American Airlines, Aeromexico, easyJet, Ryanair, Cityjet, Volotea, IndiGo and Jet Airways. Every year, 1500 + new pilots graduate from CAE. Our numerous relationships with airlines around the globe, translates into more career opportunities for our students. CAE has a dedicated team that provides pre-employment support, and advice to enable our graduates to gain their first professional flying job.

CAE offers training programs that address the entire career life cycle of a pilot from cadet to captain. As the training partner of choice of many aircraft manufacturers and airlines, we offer innovative training solutions to our customers, such as the recently launched CAE Rise™ training system, the XR Series Training Equipment suite, including the CAE 7000XR Series full-flight simulator. With 50+ training locations worldwide, CAE has the world's largest civil aviation training network, providing training on the widest coverage of in-production and in-service aircraft models. In addition, we offer aviation personnel sourcing services including recruitment of flight personnel and leasing of pilots to airlines.

In 2018, CAE announced the introduction of the CAE Women in Flight scholarship program, demonstrating its commitment to promoting the advancement of women in the aviation industry. The CAE Women in Flight scholarship program is a competitive program seeking for female ambassadors who demonstrate leadership skills, active involvement in their communities, perseverance and who are passionate about aviation. CAE will provide financial support to aspiring female pilots by awarding five full scholarships, across its global training network to support greater diversity and a better gender balance in the aviation industry. Backed by a record of more than 70 years of industry firsts, we continue to help define global training standards with our innovative virtual-to-live training solutions to make flying safer, maintain defense force readiness and enhance patient safety. We have the broadest global presence in the industry, with over 9,000 employees, 160 sites and training locations in over 35 countries. Each year, we train more than 220,000 civil and defense crewmembers, including more than 135,000 pilots, and thousands of healthcare professionals worldwide.

Who offers comprehensive cadet to captain training?

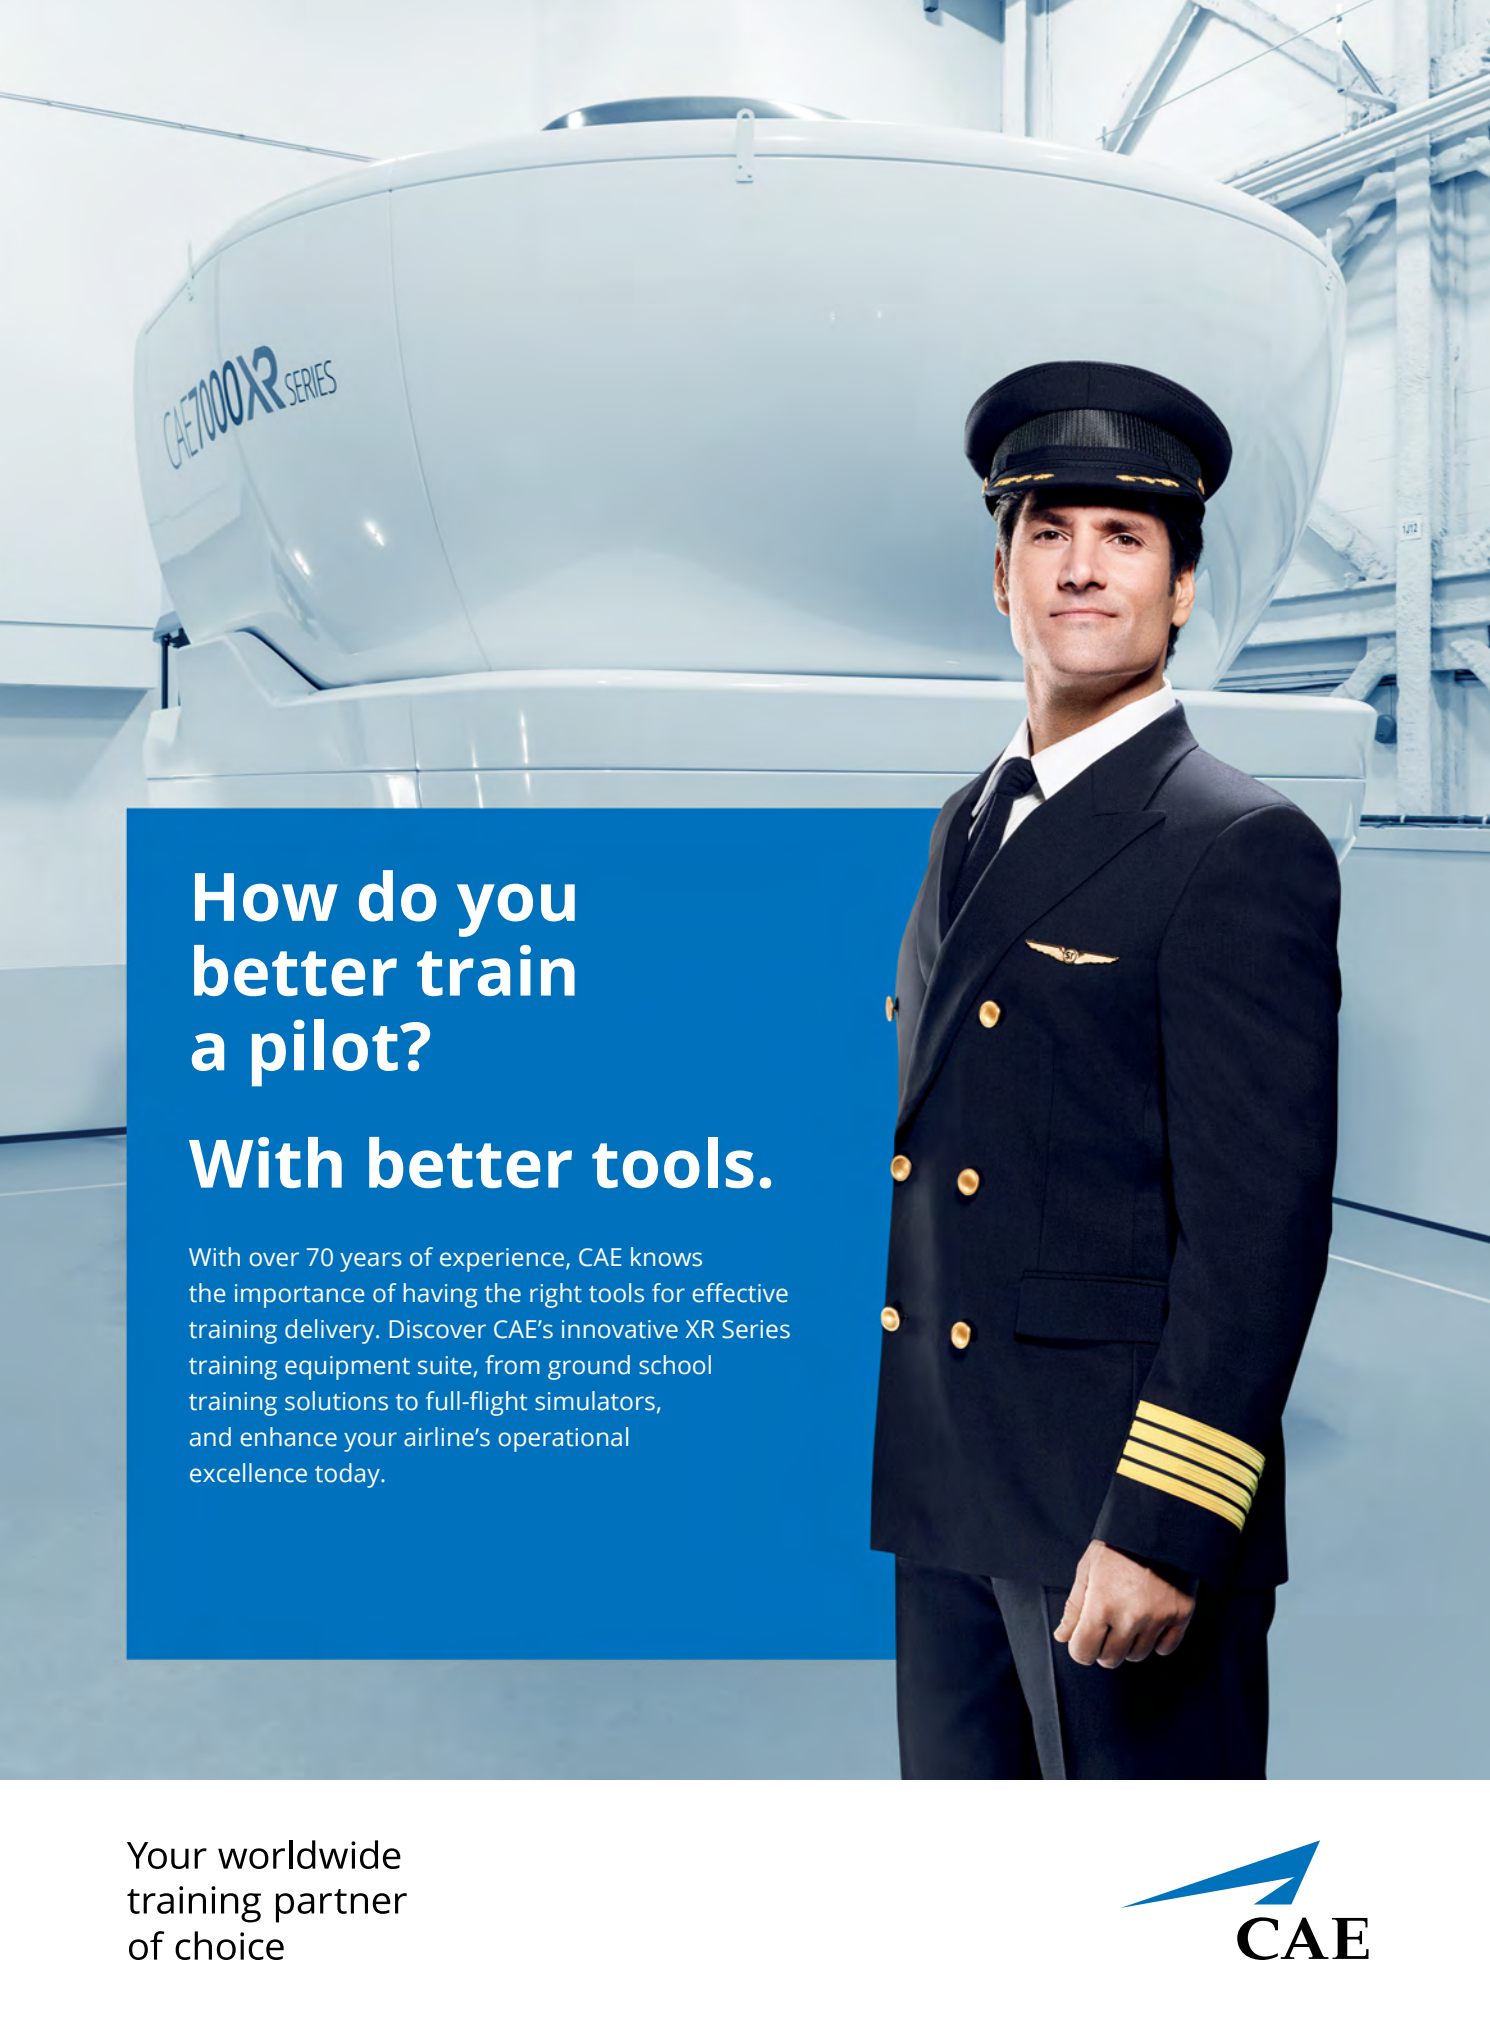

We do.

CAE is the training partner of choice for more airlines worldwide than any other organization. Our training programs span the entire lifecycle of the professional pilot, from cadet to captain. Make CAE the first choice for all your pilot training needs.

Your worldwide training partner of choice

A man in a dark blue pilot's uniform with gold buttons and stripes on the sleeves stands in front of a large, white, dome-shaped flight simulator. The simulator has "CAE 7000XR SERIES" written on its side. The background is a light blue industrial setting.

How do you better train a pilot?

With better tools.

With over 70 years of experience, CAE knows the importance of having the right tools for effective training delivery. Discover CAE's innovative XR Series training equipment suite, from ground school training solutions to full-flight simulators, and enhance your airline's operational excellence today.
